MATTRESS FACTORY IS DECLARED TO BE SANITARY

In recognition of a protest made by J. I. Smith of Ogden, proprietor of the Smith Mattress Factory, that his factory had been discriminated against by the state board of health in the publication, some weeks ago, of a condemnatory report concerning its sanitary condition, T. B. Beatty, secretary of the state board, has made public the following letter:

Jan. 5, 1916.
"Utah State Board of Health, Salt Lake City.

"City Board of Health, Dear Sirs:—In justice to the Ogden mattress factory, concerning the operations of which a report of the inspector of the State Board of Health was recently published by the Ogden City Board of Health, I deem it only fair to state that the methods employed in the manufacturing of mattresses therein described are identical the same and equally as sanitary as those in use, not only in all other mattress factories in the state but throughout the United States. Improvement in the process whereby existing sanitary defects may be remedied will be required by the State Board of Health and will apply equally to all manufacturers of mattresses. Very truly, (Signed) T. B. Beatty, Secretary."

A copy of the letter was presented to Mr. Smith this morning by City Sanitary Inspector George Shorten, and in speaking of it the factory owner said:

"Knowing conditions, will regard to health and sanitation at my factory to be equal or superior to those of any factory in this part of the country. I felt that I had been unjustly singled out in the report on sanitary conditions in Ogden, given out for publication by the health authorities following the close of the 1915 'Clean City' contest. I have therefore followed up the matter and this letter is issued by the state board as the result."

"My factory has always been operated under the best possible conditions, and if the health authorities can suggest any means whereby they can be improved, I will be pleased to carry out the suggestions. It is a well-known fact that dust cannot be eliminated in the manufacture of mattresses. In order that the employees of the factory may have the best protection possible, they are furnished with respirators at my expense and I have also installed the latest types of vacuum fans to carry the dust out of the factory."

HYRUM PINGREE RESIGNS AND J. M. MILLS IS REQUESTED TO GO

Discordant Elements in the School System of Ogden Are to be Eliminated by Board of Education—Pingree, After His Resignation Is Accepted, Makes Bitter Attack, Slurring Judge Henderson and Praising Supt. Mills.

In an executive session, following the acceptance of the resignation of President Hyrum Pingree, the Ogden City board of education last night requested the resignation of Supt. J. M. Mills. The request was made by Dr. H. H. Henderson, acting on behalf of the remaining board members. In words making it plain that the differences between the board and Mr. Mills were such that they necessitated the resignation of one or the other.

Supt. Mills answered the statement that he had expected the board to make the request as soon as President Pingree had resigned and that he would present his reply at the next meeting. A special meeting was then ordered for next Wednesday night and it is expected that the superintendent's reply will be ready by that time. He is under contract to the Ogden schools until next July but he has been asked by the board to resign. He has held the position of superintendent during the seven years Hyrum Pingree had control of the board.

Military Drill.

During the forepart of the meeting last night, the former order of the board that high school students eligible for military drill next appearing next Monday night with uniform and equipment for participation in the drill, be suspended, was countermanded. This action was taken in recognition of requests that their boys be excused from the drill, from the following parents:

W. J. Dermody, A. Whittemore, C. C. Aanderson, O. A. Byrne, W. H. Bennett, the Rev. George F. Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. B. Jansen, A. E. Thomas, J. M. Stone, Sydney James Brine, Mrs. A. J. Putnam, W. M. Wilson, Howard D. Harris, David Farr, Mrs. Enoch Farr, Jr., Mrs. B. Chadwick, Jr., W. N. Burt, W. A. Koldewyn, Mrs. A. M. Christensen and Mrs. W. E. Corey.

With the countermanding of the order for compulsory drill, the school directors decided to reconsider the entire report of the board next Wednesday night. All persons interested, it was said, would be welcome at the meeting.

Moving Pictures.

On motion of President Pingree, the board also decided to reconsider the question of the use of moving picture machines in the schools. This action was taken in response to a request of the Child Culture club for the return of $100 donated by the club for the purchase of one of the three machines owned by the schools. The machines could not be placed in the schools owing to the fire insurance clause classifying them as extra hazardous risks.

Miss Viola Clancy, clerk of the board, was granted an increase of $5 a month in salary and was reappointed for two years. W. D. Ellison was named treasurer, at the same salary, $1 per year.

Pingree's Resignation.

Other routine matters were disposed of, including the passing of several small expense bills, and the resignation of President Pingree was then presented and accepted. The wording of the resignation was as follows:

"Board of Education, Ogden City, Utah. Gentlemen:—On account of having changed my residence from Ogden to Salt Lake City, it becomes necessary for me to tender my resignation as a member and president of the Ogden City board of education to take effect at once. In thus presenting my resignation, I desire to express to you the feelings of pleasure and satisfaction that have come to me through my long association with the members of the board and my deep appreciation for the universal courtesy and consideration you have shown me while acting as president of the board. I shall always feel a keen interest in the public schools of Ogden and of our state and shall ever hope for their continued success. With renewed assurances of my high personal esteem, I remain, yours very truly, Hyrum Pingree."

Pingree Makes Bitter Attack.

Following Mr. Pingree's retirement from the meeting, the executive session in which Mr. Mills' resignation was asked, was called.

In speaking of the board's action regarding Supt. Mills, Mr. Pingree said: "It is just what I expected. The present members of the board, dominated completely by the newest member, H. H. Henderson, and servile to Mr. Henderson's every antagonistic view, have shown themselves at every meeting to be determined to thwart every effort of the superintendent to maintain a progressive school system in the Ogden schools. The attitude of the board has been, as directed by H. H. Henderson, that the schools should be subjected to the experimental, arrogant ideas of one member of the board, rather than the experienced, intelligent leadership of a school superintendent who is recognized as one of the most progressive educators in the country—a man, who, when not antagonized by the board, made the Ogden schools noted for their efficiency and progress."

"I have resigned only because I have moved, temporarily at least, my residence to Salt Lake and could not, in justice, remain on the board. I have tried to save the Ogden schools from embarrassments, such as begin immediately after my resignation had been accepted, in the request for Mills' resignation. I succeeded, partially, in holding the board into line, but I could not fight alone."

"Mills is, in the judgment of every educator who has ever studied the Ogden school system, one of the best superintendents this or any other city could have. He is not the kind of educator who follows the policies of his grandfather. He is progressive, and time has proven that his progress is along the right lines—toward the educating of a better class of future citizenship for Ogden."

"On the other hand there is not a member on the board who is familiar with school management. They know only the ideas that were new to them when they went to school. And yet they seem to want to upset all the good work Mills has done for the Ogden schools just because of a spirit of petty jealousy—just because they wish to submit to the domination of one man. "Ogden needs, not a new superintendent, but new blood in the school board. Men who are broad of mind and above petty jealousy of a capable superintendent, men who will put the good of the schools, the good of the children of the city first and above all else. Such men will work with and not against John M. Mills—they will be his helpers, not his detractors."

"I speak from seven years' experience on the school board; from an intimate knowledge of the work of John Mills has been trying to do. I have made my work on the school board paramount to all my other interests, and I have taken pride in the growth of the school system. I feel as would a man who sees his lifework tumbling before him when I see the school system I have helped, only in a small way, but helplessly, to build up, falling back into discredit. What I have done has only been in a helping way—helping Superintendent Mills to prove his ideas and the new principles of school education. What the board now wishes to do is to fight against these ideas, because they know they have a superintendent who will not be servile to them, who will fight first for the schools and, if need be, leave his case to the public, just as he is doing now. It will be noted by the public, in looking over the issue, that practically every innovation the board has adopted over Mr. Mills' protest has been a failure and discarded."

"I am speaking now as a former member of the board. But because my business affairs have made it necessary for me to resign, does not prevent me from remaining in my heart an Ogden citizen and one who is interested above all else in the growth and progress of the school system."

Mr. Pingree further commented upon the practice of certain members of the board, Judge Henderson in particular, in allowing disgruntled teachers who had been disciplined by Mr. Mills, and others who seek to exert influence against him come to them when "out of session" with tales they would not repeat to the board in person.

There is one principal, said Mr. Pingree, "who has gone to Judge Henderson with countless complaints which he knew the board would not listen to officially, and Henderson has preferred to listen to him than ask Mr. Mills for a report. D. H. Adams, principal at Central Junior high, for instance, is another who endorses the ideas of two generations ago and who continually seeks the ear of Judge Henderson with petty complaints and reactionary ideas and has the gratification of seeing this member of the board place his knowledge of how to run a school system above those of the superintendent."

"I have taken a personal pride in the growth and gradual development of the Ogden school system from a makeshift into an institution that has earned favorable comment from other cities and famous educators. I have helped only as it became possible for a school board member to help, but I have made it one of my fondest duties to seek always some way in which my capacity as a school director I could do something that would benefit the school system."

"I would not give up were it not that I have found it necessary to move temporarily at least to Salt Lake. But while I may be away most of the time, I shall always be present in spirit, and a participant in my heart, in whatever credits accrue to Ogden's schools."

Henderson Out of Town.

The Standard has been trying all day to get Judge Henderson in order that he might give his version of the trouble with Mr. Pingree and Mills, and only this afternoon we learn that Judge Henderson left on an early morning train for the Promontory mines.

The only other members of the board of education that could be reached even by telephone state that it was unnecessary at this time to make a detailed statement; that the public was well aware of the present demoralized condition of Ogden school affairs and the question was whether such condition should be continued and whether Mr. Mills should dictate to the board and disregard the board in all school matters.

OVERLAND NOTES

Preferring an automobile to a private car, Brant Whitlock, United States ambassador to Belgium, made his homecoming trip from Washington to Toledo in an Overland "Six" Touring Car.

Although Mr. Whitlock arrived at the Capitol tired and worn from the great strain he has been under, he decided that he could secure greater rest and recreation by making the trip to Toledo in an automobile than by taking the train. In spite of the fact that the weather was severely cold during the entire four days taken on the journey, and the roads frozen and rutty, both Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock enjoyed the trip immensely.

The other members of the Whitlock party who enjoyed the winter trip were Mrs. Whitlock's mother, a maid and Mieke, the little Pekinese dog brought over from Belgium. The driver, an employee of the Harper-Overland company, 21 Washington, was chosen by Mr. Whitlock, secretary to the president, from among a dozen willing applicants.

Over 200 miles of the 535 mile trip lay through the Blue Ridge and Allegheny mountains. Mr. Whitlock chose the quiet and solitude of the mountain roads instead of those most frequented by motorists. His idea was to get away entirely from the noise and rush of the cities so that he could relax for a few days and enjoy a complete change of environment in undisturbed privacy.

The party was well protected against the elements. Fur robes, ulsters and stocking caps made driving comfortable, while the crisp mountain air was an agreeable change from the close, stuffy railroad cars. During the trip, the Whitlock party drove through five snowstorms and that they found the roads suitable for fast driving. For hours at a time the car made its own tracks over the snowbound roads in the mountains. One stretch in particular that extended for nine miles along a mountain trail was spoken of by Mr. Whitlock as being more beautiful than anything he had ever seen abroad.

No punctures or trouble of any kind marred the journey. Double chains had to be wrapped around the rear wheels of the car as the roads led the way over mountains seldom traversed by an automobile. Fifty-one gallons of gasoline and only one and one-half gallons of oil were consumed by the Overland during the entire four days.

When the car was examined in Toledo it was found to be in perfect condition. No water had been put in the tank from the time it left Washington and a quart can filled it to overflowing.

U. OF U. DRAMATIC CLASS TO PRESENT A PLAY

The University of Utah's dramatic class will present to Ogden theatre patrons the play made famous by Henry Miller, "The Husband's Wife," Tuesday night, January 18.

This is the twentieth annual tour of the dramatic class of the U. of U. and will be the first time they have played under the auspices of a federated club. The Child Culture club members have always furthered the educational interests of Ogden and have broadened their work to help the state and have taken this opportunity at the request of the manager, A. G. Thurman, to encourage the development of dramatic art in the students, especially as Ogden has been honored this year as well as last year by the selection of two Ogden girls to play leading roles. Miss Daisy Rolapp appears in the leading part this year. Last year Miss Lila Eccles had the honor. The proceeds of the performance will be added to the swimming pool fund.

OGDEN MERCHANTS SHOULD BE ALERT

It is said by Mayor A. R. Heywood that merchants from other cities are asking information respecting material which will be needed in the department of finance and public affairs. He desires the Ogden merchants to give some attention to the list of things to be purchased which is on file in the auditor's office. Mr. Heywood states that he thinks Ogden people should supply everything needed in the city administration as far as possible.

SPORTING CLUB HAS BEEN FORMED

A sporting club, known as the "Elite Athletic Club," has been organized in Ogden, with a charter membership of 25, and the following officers have been elected; R. F. Moore, president; J. J. Griffin, vice president; R. A. Norris, secretary-treasurer, who with Frank Smith and C. C. Cooke form the directorate.

Club rooms have been secured in the Hurst building on Hudson avenue and will be fitted up in the near future with all types of paraphernalia for physical culture purposes. Every Tuesday night, it is planned to have wrestling, boxing and other athletic contests staged at the club, with no charge of admission for members.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT AT SHOOTING GALLERY

Charles Gruman of 2303 Lincoln avenue, proprietor of a shooting gallery on Twenty-fifth street, near Grant avenue, had a narrow escape from death last night at the gallery and is now suffering from a bullet wound in his abdomen.

He was standing behind the target boards at the gallery, when a patron, with unerring aim, shot through an open target hole with a .22 caliber rifle. The bullet struck Gruman in the right side of his abdomen and lodged against the backbone, narrowly missing the intestines.

Dr. Mark Brown was summoned from the Berthana hall, where he was passing the evening at the Bohemian club dance, and attended the wounded man. He extracted the bullet and pronounced the injured man out of danger.
